

Good morning !FIRSTNAME!,

are you going to let this happen or are you going to impeach the Bush administration now?

The article to read about this is here:

http://www.newsmax.com/headlines/cia_hayden_warning/2007/09/07/30766.html?s=sp&promo_code=39BD-1

If you're reading this in webmail or have one of those "security" systems installed that switch links off, simply copy the entire link, from:

<http://.....> through to 39BD-1 and paste it into the address line of your browser. That will open the page.

Now, the comments of General Hayden may, on the surface, appear believable. However, to anyone familiar with the "tribal areas" of Pakistan, there is a big credibility gap. Imagine, if you will, the high Rockies. But with higher mountains and deeper valleys. There are almost no roads and those that are, are often little more than dirt tracks passable only by rough terrain and tracked vehicles. There is little in the way of telephones and, where they do exist, is very reminiscent of 1950s America. Electricity is not generally available and unreliable and sporadic in delivery. The principal transport medium is donkeys. General Hayden is asking you to believe that they have, somehow, managed to create a nuclear bomb, carry it in secret (on "super donkey", presumably) from a mountain valley in the Himalayas to America where they plan, in total secrecy, to set it off in the next few days. General Hayden's intelligence network has, apparently, been able to follow the bomb all the way from the Western Himalayas to America but now, apparently, can't find it and so can't tell where it will be set off. Are you going to believe this?

Further, The Council of Foreign Relations is indisputably the appointees of the banking cartel in the US government whose task it is to oversee the nazification of America. The "unusual public address" was made at their "request" (sic).

This "nuclear attack" from North Western Pakistan is then to be used as the justification for the carpet nuclear bombing of Iran. Errrrr? What's the connection? Well, Iran and Pakistan have a common mountain border so the bomb "must" have come from Iran. (So why carry it a several hundred miles through the mountains on donkey back before, miraculously, setting it up in America?)

Have you any idea how difficult it is to get a nuclear bomb? Even those governments supportive of "freedom fighters" won't let them anywhere near such facilities. Have you any idea what is needed to build such a thing? It took the combined scientific and industrial might of America and Britain 4 years to build just the first one. It took the old Soviet Union years to catch up. And a bunch of tribesmen in a remote valley can do the same thing in six months! Are you going to believe this?

Well, who does have free and easy access to nuclear weapons? For one, The Council of Foreign Relations. Could it be that they "asked" General Hayden to issue this warning because THEY know all about the nuclear attack well in advance. Isn't this much more believable?

More later today.

IMPEACH THE ENTIRE BUSH ADMINISTRATION TODAY!

And at the same time, you can keep doing that which I recommended to you yesterday: It's already having some effect. Keep going - we can win!

Blessed be America
